

Miton kitchens in Chelsea

By Casa Mia

Dated: Nov 25, 2008

Casa Mia is proud to have completed its latest project in a new Chelsea development

Casa Mia is proud to have another completed project using fine Miton kitchens. The project consists of high-end custom designed cabinetry specifically tailored to the needs of the project.

The project is being developed by Broad Mill Development Group headed by Mr. Eamon Roche, and is nestled in the heart of Chelsea at 159 West 24th Street.

The building has a reach history dating to 1901 when it was built as a stable. As the horse and carriage vanished from Manhattan's streetscape, the building became home to the City's first automobiles.

A century later, the developer has called upon Casa Mia to provide custom tailored kitchen cabinetry as well as additional built-in mill work units to enhance the project.

Italian cabinetry were supplied for the kitchens, baths, as well as ptac enclosure units. All units were manufactured to order by Miton a brand of Cubo Design srl who Casa Mia is proud to represent.

The on-site sales gallery is headed by City Habitats Marketing Group, additional information is at:
